

Self-Control

There is a close play at first and the umpire calls you out. You accept the call and walk back to the dugout.

Goal-Setting

You have a book report due in three weeks. The first week you plan on reading your book; the second week outlining your paper; and the third week completing your report by the due date.

Respect

You listen quietly to a classmate sharing something important during class.

Responsibility

Today at school you remembered your book in math class; your reading homework; paper and pencil; tennis shoes for P.E.

Caring

Your next-door neighbor is an elderly lady. During the summer you cut her grass; during the winter you shovel her sidewalk; and take out her trash.

Courage

You witness a classmate being a bully. You stand up and tell them to stop.

Integrity

While playing ball in the backyard, the ball goes over the fence. Your parents' rule is to not go in your neighbor's yard. You wait to ask for permission to get the ball.

Patience

You are waiting in line at the concession stand at a Cardinals game. Although you are hungry, you wait your turn and return to the game.

Honesty

You find a camera under a seat at a Cardinals game. You decide to turn it into the usher so the rightful owner may be found.

Cooperation

A groundball is hit to the third baseman. He throws the ball to second. The second baseman throws the ball to first. Their cooperation makes for a successful double play.

Trustworthiness

You are home alone after school. Your parents expect you to stay in the house, not invite friends over, and answer the phone using the safety rules you have discussed.

Fairness

There is one slice of pizza in the refrigerator. You and your sister want a snack and decide to cut it in half so you each get a piece.
